

OXFORD NEW HISTORIES of PHILOSOPHY

Susan Stebbing: Analysis, Common Sense, and Public Philosophy is the first edited volume to be dedicated exclusively to the philosophy of Susan Stebbing (1885–1943)—a pivotal yet neglected figure in the male-dominated tradition of analytic philosophy, and the first woman to hold a Chair in Philosophy in Britain. This volume collects eleven new essays that explore central themes of Stebbing’s philosophy: the significance of her work on metaphysical analysis; her contributions to public philosophy, including her work in the philosophy of physics, critical thinking, ethics, and counter propaganda efforts; as well as her work in philosophical logic and the philosophy of language. The volume and its contributors seek both to reinstate Stebbing’s place in the analytic tradition by examining her work in context and to highlight the continued relevance of her ideas to contemporary philosophy.

ABOUT THE EDITORS

Annalisa Coliva is Chancellor’s Professor of Philosophy at the University of California, Irvine. She is the editor-in-chief of the Journal for the History of Analytical Philosophy. Her research focuses on epistemology, philosophy of mind, and the history of analytic philosophy.

Louis Doulas is a Postdoctoral Fellow in the Extending New Narratives in the History of Philosophy project at McGill University. His research is both historical and theoretical, focusing on the history of analytic philosophy and issues in epistemology and methodology.
